June 25-29: Life on the Farmstead: (Part I) Step back in time to life on the farm in the Colonial era. Campers will churn, stir, sew, saw, chop and more, re-enacting and learning about the ways and traditions of a simpler life in the old days.

July 2-6 Organic Gardening & Pollinators

(no camp on July 4): Campers will be getting down and dirty as they plant, harvest, weed and water in the camp's very own vegetable garden. Campers will also learn all about the important creatures that pollinate and protect our food sources and why they are essential to local farms and gardens.

July 9-13 Nature Explorations: Campers will trek the fields of Hallockville to seek out wildlife, flora and fauna. From uncovering animal tracks to birdwatching with local experts, campers will learn all about the won-der of the natural habitat that surrounds them.

July 16-20 Barn Yard Animals: Why can cows eat grass but not pigs? That's just one of the many questions that will be answered during this week of exploring the importance of animals on our local farms. Children will get to know and learn how to care for Stella, Zoe and the rest of the beloved farm animals of Hallockville's farm.

July 23-27 Tools & Trades: Life in a farming community lends itself to a myriad of hands-on work with a variety of implements. From woodworking to woolworking, soap making to jarring, this week campers will engage with a variety of materials and resources based on the work of local farmers, builders, makers, crafters and artisans.

July 30-Aug 3 Native American Wilderness: Campers will step back in time and learn how native settlers lived off the land and sea on the North Fork. Campers will engage in interactive experiences from drum circles to native dances, exploring local and regional tribes. The rich historic landscape of the Hallockville Farm provides campers with the unique opportunity to delve deeply into the past in order to more greatly appreciate the present.

Aug 3-10 Life on the Farmstead: (Part II) Children who attended Part I of this multi-faceted theme will continue their explorations of history and rural life. And new campers will enjoy the discovery of life on an historic farmstead.
